TENTATIVE SYLLABUS

Seminar Description and Objectives

This three-week seminar aims to provide Australian students with an overview of the contemporary Israeli legal system, while enabling them to explore the major challenges it has grappled with in recent years. The first week of the seminar includes introductory classes designed to impart knowledge of the basic concepts and institutional framework of Israeli law and government. Classes during the remainder of the seminar focus on more specific areas of Israeli law. They feature guest lectures by leading academics and experienced practitioners, who provide students with information on the latest developments in their fields of expertise. In the course of the program, students will also participate in field trips to the Supreme Court of Israel, the Knesset (the Israeli Parliament) and the Yad Vashem Holocaust Museum. Class attendance and participation in field trips is mandatory. Students who do not regularly attend class will not receive credit for the course.
Assessment

Students are required to take a four-hour exam at the end of the seminar. The grade for the seminar will be determined on the basis of the final exam only.

Some graduate (JD or LLM) students may be required to write an essay (7,500–10,000 words) instead of, or in addition to, the exam in order to receive accreditation from their university or college for participation in the seminar. Students within this category are requested to notify the instructor at the beginning of the seminar of the requirements that apply to them. JD and LLM students from the University of Western Australia are required to submit a 2,000 word paper (worth 20% of the final grade) in addition to writing the exam (worth 80%). The essay may be written following the completion of the seminar, and students will be expected to submit it to the instructor by e-mail following their return to Australia. The topic of the essay will be selected in agreement with the instructor from a list of proposed subjects pertaining to Israeli law and related to the material taught in the seminar. Evaluation of the essay will be based on the following criteria: thoroughness of research; presentation and organization (including references and a bibliography); quality and style of writing; and the strength of the presented argument, including demonstrated comprehension of pertinent materials, clarity of reasoning, and originality of the ideas developed in the paper.

Readings

The seminar is conducted exclusively in English; proficiency in spoken or written Hebrew is not a prerequisite for participation in the program. Israeli statutes and Supreme Court decisions relevant to the material discussed in class are often available online in English translation. The list of scholarly articles compiled for the seminar summarizes, in English, leading court cases and legal doctrines. An online site administered by the International Rothberg School is available to enable easy interaction between students and the academic coordinator throughout the course of the program. By accessing the site, students will be able to obtain general information and announcements about the program. Background material and course readings will be posted online in the period leading up to the seminar, so as to give students the opportunity to familiarize themselves in advance with the various topics addressed in the course of the program. Items marked with an asterisk are required readings. Students are expected to complete the required readings before class and be prepared to discuss them.
